REFUGEES FLOOD COUNTRY

French Jewry Under Algeria Pressure

Paris, (JCNS) The problem of providing assistance for the needy amongst the Algerian Jewish refugees continues to exercise Jewish relief organisations here. Reports from Israel of a forthcoming agreement with France under which French aid would be made available to refugees going on to Israel appear to be premature.

Some arrangement of this nature has been discussed between Dr. Nahum Goldmann and M. Louis Joxe, Minister for Algerian Affairs, during which the Minister promised to consider "with favour and sympathy" the extension of compensation and aid to Algerian Jews settling in France, but the signature of an agreement covering these points was never even considered.

The matter is still under discussion but, in fact, only a small number of Jews will be affected. Only recent immigrants of French nationality are entitled to financial compensation from the French Government. The majority of Jewish arrivals are former Moroccan subjects and not therefore eligible for French aid.

Since the establishment of the State of Israel, 10,705 Jews have gone to settle there from Algeria, 1,354 of them in the period January-May this year. Giving these figures, Mr. S. Z. Shragai, head of the Jewish Agency's Immigration Department, said that arrivals from Algeria in the first year of the State's existence totalled only 745. Last year, there were 4,411.

PRESIDENT TUBMAN IN ISRAEL

Haifa, (JCNS) President William Tubman of Liberia, arrived here aboard the Theodor Herzl, for a ten-day official visit. He was accompanied by Mrs. Tubman and a suite of 35 officials.

President Ben-Zvi, Mr. Ben-Gurion, Mrs. Golda Meir, members of the Diplomatic Corps, the mayor of Haifa, Mr. Aba Khushi, and a big crowd greeted the African President.

The Israeli Press is giving extensive coverage to the visit in view of Liberia's consistent friendship towards Israel since the U.N. partition resolution in 1947. Liberia, last year, was also the co-author of a U.N. resolution calling for direct peace talks between the Arab States and Israel as means for a solution of outstanding problems in the Middle East. Earlier, aboard the ship, President Tubman said he was ready to help in seeking peace between Israel and the Arabs.

President Ben-Zvi is expected to return the visit in Monrovia in August.

FRIENDSHIP TREATY

Jerusalem, (JCNS)—A treaty of friendship and an agreement on technical co-operation were signed between Israel and the Central African Republic, at the end of an eleven-day visit to Israel by M. David Decko, President of the Central African Republic. M. Decko was accompanied by the President of his Parliament and by the Ministers of Foreign Affairs and of Finance.

The treaty promises peace and friendship between the two countries, and undertakes to settle all differences by negotiations or by a recourse to the United Nations.

The technical agreement refers particularly to agriculture but also to industry and joint enterprises, including public health problems, medicine and communications.

Nazi Terror Sweeps Argentina

Buenos Aires, (JCNS) Since the execution of Adolf Eichmann, Argentine Jewry has been experiencing an unprecedented wave of terror. It is difficult not to believe that antisemitic hooligans saw the green light for their attacks on Jews in the statement issued the day after Eichmann's execution by the Argentine Foreign Minister, which suggested that a lesser penalty than death could have been imposed.

In the city of Santa Fe, 500 miles away, there were three separate incidents in which Israeli flags were set on fire. Jewish shops closed for half a day in protest. In Bahia Blanca, a southern city close to a centre of Jewish settlement, a monument in the central square presented by the Jewish community was destroyed.

Last week, the machine-gun gang who attacked Zim's offices here, struck again. They shot up the Buenos Aires offices of the principal Jewish daily newspaper, the "Yiddish Zeitung," breaking windows and causing other damage. Shortly afterwards a Jewish shop nearby was also attacked. Slogans daubed on walls in the vicinity read "Long Live Eichmann!" and "Death to the Jews!"

In the city of Tucuman, a former Jewish Congressman, Senor Abraham Rosenberg, was arraigned before Judge Jorge Kliz Lopez and charged with being involved in removing from Police headquarters the private dossier of "Ricardo Clement"—the name by which Eichmann was known in Argentina — and with having had contacts with two secret Israeli organisations, the Irgun Zvai Leumi and Shin Beth.

These developments, taken together with other incidents are making life almost unbearable for Argentina's near half-million Jews. Shortly before his replacement in office, the Governor of the Province of Buenos Aires was visited by a delegation from D.A.I.A., the representative Jewish body, who asked him to put a stop to antisemitic incidents in his province. The Governor promised that strong measures would be taken. Within days, however, he was no longer in office.

This experience has been repeated in contacts with other officials. It is an indication of the fluidity of the country's political life which in itself provides ideal conditions for antisemitic elements to continue their hooliganism.

GIRL OF ELEVEN DIES THINKING SHE FAILED IN EXAMINATION

Rabat, (JCNS) A Moroccan Jewish girl of eleven, Messody Cohen, collapsed and died in the street on Saturday believing she had failed in her school examination — when in fact she had passed.

Messody, a pupil of the Alliance Israelite's Julien Weill school here, scanned the examination results on the school board and saw her name among those who were successful. Skipping happily home to announce her success to her father, M. Jacques Cohen, a Meknes furniture dealer, she was stopped on her way by a schoolmate who, it is alleged, told her she had in fact failed and must have misread the results. Messody collapsed and died on the spot.

Subsequently, it was discovered that she had passed the examination.

ISRAELI RABBI EXONORATED

Jerusalem, (CJN) — The District Court last Thursday exonerated Rabbi Binyamin Mendelson of Moshav Komemiut of abducting Yossele Schuhmacher. But it rebuked him for neglecting his civic duty in failing to inform the authorities searching for the boy.

The other three accused Israel Pozner, Yitzhak Meir Rappoport and Moshe David Paluck, all of Komemiut, were also acquitted of the charges.

The court's decision followed the announcement by the Jerusalem District-Attorney, Ezra Hedaya, that the prosecution's chief witness, Yitzhak Kugler, had told him on Wednesday he had lied on the witness stand. Kugler had testified that Rabbi Mendelson and the other three had abducted the boy on February 13, 1960. His testimony was the sole evidence connecting the four accused with the actual abduction.

The President of the Court, Dr. Binyamin Halevi, ordered Kugler arrested and charged with perjury.

ADMITS FALSE ARREST

(Mr. and Mrs. Shlomo Zalman Kutt, of Komemiut, are standing trial in another court for harbouring the boy.)

Before the court convened, Mr. Hedaya informed the defence counsel, Mr. Shmuel Tamir, that Kugler had admitted giving false testimony. The District-Attorney then made the announcement in court as soon as the judges filed in. "This destroys his veracity as a witness," he told the court. "He was our chief witness. Therefore, I must ask the court to acquit Rabbi Mendelson and the other three accused on all five counts of kidnapping Yossele Schuhmacher."

Dr. Halevi asked him: "Did you really have to hear 23 witnesses before you decided Kugler was lying? I myself hinted that he was not telling the truth. You did not have to wait for Kugler's admission."

Mr. Hedaya pointed out it was his public duty to prosecute a case and not to rule on the credibility of witnesses. This was the court's right.

When Dr. Halevi finished reading and the judges filed out, yeshiva students began singing and dancing out of the packed courtroom, down the stairs and into the street.

The National Religious Party (Mizrachi Hapoel Hamizrachi) sent a message of greetings to Rabbi Mendelson, greeting him warmly "on having the privilege to put an end to the campaign of slander against religious Jewry."

KOMEMIUT OVERJOYED AT RABBI'S RETURN

ASHKELON. — Rabbi Binyamin Mendelson received a joyous welcome from his followers when he and the three other Komemiut members returned home after their acquittal by the Jerusalem District Court.

Filing into the synagogue for evening prayers, villagers and members of the religious Nahal unit broke into spirited dancing and singing.

Seen dancing hand-in-hand with Rabbi Mendelson was Mr. Mordecai Kugler, father of the perjured sole witness for the prosecution.

ONTARIO GOVERNMENT HAILS COMMUNITY FOR NEW HOME FOR AGED AND HOSPITAL

Ontario Health Minister Matthew B. Dymond, M. D. commended Toronto's Jewish community for its warmth, compassion and generosity on Monday, June 25, when he turned the first sod for the new Jewish Home for the Aged and Baycrest Hospital.

More than 800 including Federal, Provincial and civic officials attended the ceremony on the grounds of the present home and hospital at 3560 Bathurst St.

It was an event the Jewish community of Toronto will long remember.

POSLUNS LAUDED

The audience listened with pride as Dr. Dymond, Senator David Croll and Councillor Irving Paisley, representing Reeve Norman Goodhead, spoke in glowing terms of the great strides that have been taken in caring for the aged and chronically sick by the Jewish community.

Dr. Dymond praised Abe Posluns, President of the Home and Hospital for his work and said:

"I commend you and your board and all those who have helped to bring to fruition this wonderful dream".

Herbert J. Weiss, chairman of the Public Relations Committee for the Building Expansion Fund, and a founding member of the Board of Directors of the Home introduced Mr. Posluns who was chairman of the sod turning ceremony.

ONE OF FINEST IN NORTH AMERICA

Mr. Posluns reminded the audience that the present Home and Hospital was opened by the Prime Minister of Ontario in 1954 and at that time the Board of Directors pledged to provide a high quality of medical care and a proper program for useful living.

"We pledged to supply an atmosphere of warmth and understanding so that residents and patients might enjoy life to the utmost of their capabilities. I firmly believe that this obligation has been fulfilled." he said.

Mr. Posluns noted that the Jewish Home for the Aged and Baycrest Hospital are regarded as being among the finest institutions of their kind in North America.

He stressed the research and teaching programs and talked of the unique medical integration with New Mount Sinai Hospital.

Mr. Posluns commended the work of the dedicated professional staff — especially Sam Ruth, administrator — and the volunteers.

"Much credit for our programming must go to our extraordinary Women's Auxiliary and our Men's Service Group." he added.

Mr. Posluns also praised the men and women who founded the Cecil St. Home for the Aged.

In more sombre vein he talked of the need for a successful Building Expansion Campaign. He graphically described the plight of the more than 300 old men and women waiting to get into the Home.

OELBAUM THANKS COMMUNITY

Senator Croll spoke in glowing terms of the live and respect which the community has offered its aged.

"I take a sentimental journey into humanity. I speak in glowing terms to testify to our respect and admiration for the aged who continue to hold a special place in Jewish life". he said.

J. Irving Oelbaum, Co-Chairman with Abe Posluns of the Building Expansion Fund, thanked the community and all campaign officers and workers for their support to the campaign.

He pointed out that it was the biggest single objective that any Jewish community in Canada has ever attempted.

Mr. Oelbaum reported that more than $4,100,000 had now been raised of the $5,000,000 objective and called upon all members of the community to help bring in the final $900,000.

RUBIN DIES

New York, (CJN)—Menachem Rubin, Yiddish actor and director, died here. He was 67 years old.

WARSAW'S FAMOUS GENSIA CEMETERY NOW THREATENED BY CITY PLANNERS

Warsaw, (JCNS) The future of the Central Jewish Cemetery here was again the subject of discussion between the municipal authorities and leaders of the Jewish community in Poland, according to reports.

These talks were held at the initiative of the municipal authorities who, it is believed, have again brought up a skeleton plan to clear part of the Jewish Cemetery from gravestones and tombs and utilise the area for "a general development scheme" in the Polish capital.

The Warsaw Jewish cemetery at the junction of Gensia and Okopova Streets, is situated at the end of what was the Jewish quarter of Warsaw before its destruction by the Nazis. It is near the monument to the Warsaw Ghetto heroes. Although the Nazis destroyed many Polish cemeteries, this one was left almost intact.

Reports that part of the cemetery would be used in a new development scheme appeared some time ago. But Jewish circles in Warsaw denied that the Polish authorities intended to destroy any part of the cemetery under the new plan.

DR. S. L. SAR OF YESHIVA UNI. DIES

New York, (CJN)—Dr. Samuel L. Sar, Dean of Men at Yeshiva University, died of a heart attack last Thursday in the Harry Fischel Synagogue of the University, Amsterdam Avenue and 186th Street. He was 69 years old.

Dr. Sar had just completed the opening remarks at ordination ceremony at the University's Rabbi Isaac Elchanan Theological Seminary, when he was stricken.

Surviving are a son Dr. Eli Sar, and a daughter, Mrs. Esther Zuroff.

HISTORIC OCCASION — J. Irving Oelbaum, and Abe Posluns, co-chairmen of the Building Expansion Fund, assist Ontario Health Minister Matthew B. Dymond turn the first sod for the new Jewish Home for the Aged and Baycrest Hospital. The ceremony Monday night on the grounds of the present Home was attended by more than 800 including federal, provincial and civic officials.

THE AFFAIRE MENDELSON

There is no use continuing to ignore the fact that a Kulturkampf is now developing in Israel. The orthodox and the atheists are entwined in a desperate struggle for the soul of the new nation.

Until now I, for one, have made an effort not to become involved in this battle of ideas, as demonstrated by the Mendelson affair.

Rabbi Benjamin Mendelson, the spiritual leader of the Agudat Israel village, Kommemiut, was apprehended and tried on a trumped up charge that he had abetted in the "kidnapping" of Yossele Schumacher. For one not too well acquainted with this Israeli cause celebre, I reiterate the bare facts:

Several years ago, Yossele Schumacher, a little boy, was abducted by his orthodox grandfather from his parents' home as they allegedly planned to emigrate to the USSR. The grandfather, Nachman Shtarkes, is still in prison, refusing to implicate those who helped him "rescue the child" from his parents. British courts are involved since Yossele is supposedly somewhere in England.

The fact that Yossele Schumacher had been abducted by an orthodox grandfather revived Israel's Kulturkampf — the battle for the spiritual climate of Israel, between the religious and atheistic Zealots. The anti-religious elements have conducted a systematic campaign against all orthodox Jews. It has come to a point where hoodlums and delinquents in Israeli streets molest hassidic Jews. For example, a famous Israeli inventor, a chemist, whose greatest contribution is the desalting of sea water, was insulted several weeks ago by shouts of, "Yosselei", while walking home from the synagogue, tallit-tefillin pouch under his arm.

The climax of the Yossele war came when Rabbi Mendelson was arrested for allegedly abetting in the kidnapping of Yossele. For weeks tempers in Israel flared, with newspapers on both sides of the fence inciting the populace. In New York the extremely orthodox Jews held a "successful" protest meeting at the Manhattan Center, where the resonance of the internal Israeli conflict was very loud.

Just last Thursday, Rabbi Mendelson was exonerated by the Jerusalem Court. In other words, according to our conception of democracy, this court action should write finis to the Israeli religious strife.

Despite the clear and unequivocal court decision in Israel, where such cases assume the dimension of an intra-party feud, the battle lines are just beginning to form. A leading newspaper, for instance, (the unofficial spokesman for the ruling party, Mapai,) published an editorial last Friday, trying to cast new suspicions upon the entourage of Rabbi Mendelson. Thus, instead of appeasing the public, this newspaper of the government party continues its battle against Kommemiut and creates a new martyr-image.

I for one have always opposed our meddling in internal Israeli problems. However, in the face of the revival of the Kulturkampf may I pose one question only: is Israel ready for such an ideological war which will inevitably involve us, the Jews in the Diaspora?

YIDDISH POETS "IN CHAINS" WHO CREATE LITERARY MIRACLES

The Yiddish language has in the past few years made a remarkable recovery, notwithstanding the destruction of millions of Yiddish-speaking people under Hitler. The nature of its success, which is continuing to gain momentum, has been two-fold. Politically, Yiddish has re-established a welcome position in the Soviet Union and has again become the language of literary expression. We may differ in our attitude to, and in our appreciation of, "Sovietish Heimland," the new Yiddish journal published in Moscow under the editorship of Aron Vergelis; we may also have a different outlook about the value of subjects which the journal has dealt with in the four issues which have so far appeared — the themes printed are frequently more Russian than Yiddish and the language has been, again, radically de-Hebraised; nevertheless, the return of printed Yiddish in the Soviet Union marks an important stage in the resurgence of the language.

JACOB GLATSTEIN

His poems called main event last year in Yiddish letters.

On the other side of the world — in America — there has also been a more favourable attitude to Yiddish. As in the Soviet Union, where half-a-million Jews have declared Yiddish to be their daily language, a similar number of foreign-born Jews in the United States also gave Yiddish as their mother tongue in a census last year. And the Federal Government has now made a special grant for the study of Yiddish.

FRESH VITALITY

But it is more in the literary field that the language has evinced fresh vitality. There has been a marked increase in the creative output in Yiddish, especially in the United States. A new field in which Yiddish has achieved outstanding success in the past year or so is that of narrative literature. In this sphere the most distinguished contribution has been Shlomo Rosenberg's historical novel, "The Khazars" — "Di Kuzrim," or, to give it its Spanish title, "Los Kuzaros." Rosenberg has already made a name for himself with several outstanding historical novels. His "Rabbi Akiba" and "Rabbi Meyer" — he is also the author of a book of Sholem Asch published shortly after Asch's death five years ago — won him much praise.

"Di Kuzrim," published by Judtouch in Buenos Aires, is a novel woven around the legendary Jewish State on the Volga where King Bulan and several thousand noblemen are believed to have accepted Judaism in the ninth century. The legendary disputation which brought about this important conversion to Judaism of a tribe of Turkish or Finnish origin was the theme around which Judah Halevy wrote his famous book "Kuzari." This story has now been turned into a modern Yiddish novel of great force and beauty. With true artistic skill Rosenberg has built a literary bridge between this half-primitive tribe of converted Jews and the wealthy and highly cultured Jewish communities of the golden age in Spain.

The story begins with the letter which Hasdai Ibn Shaprut, the Spanish-Jewish physician, scholar and statesman, is believed to have written to King Joseph of the Khazars. Ibn Shaprut, in addition to being the Caliph of Cordoba's physician, was also his Foreign Minister and exercised considerable infuence in international affairs. It was the age of Jewish diplomats in Moorish Spain. Ibn Shaprut believed that the Khazars were the lost Ten Tribes of Israel, and Rosenberg has turned this legend into a personal and family story with Shaprut's daughter in love with a young Spanish-Jewish scholar. To him the influential Hasdai entrusted the important mission of finding the Khazars and thus establishing contact between the great Jewish community in Andalusia and the romote Jewish State in the Crimea.

The book gives a colourful picture, artistically painted, of Jewish life in Spain at the end of the tenth century, and illustrates the wealth of scholarship and culture characteristic of the numerous well-developed Jewish communities on the Iberian Peninsular.

No less colourful is the author's description of life among the Khazars, of their kings, from King Bulan I, who accepted Judaism, to Joseph, their last powerful ruler, begore Kuzrim succumbed to the attacks of the Slav Russian princes. The messenger from Spain to the Khazars — the hero of the story, Itzok ben Nathan — is inspired, both by the great love of the Minister's daughter and the sacredness of his adventurous mission, to discover the Lost Tribes of Israel. While in the land of the Khazars he falls in love with Sulamith, the greatest beauty in the kingdom. She accompanies him back to Spain and in true Biblical fashion, the hero, being faithful to both his loves, is able to become the husband of both — polygamy was still permitted in those days.

Rosenberg's treatment of the whole episode reminds one of Leon Feuchtwanger's technique — the novel built around one or two historic figures. This is a new method in Yiddish literature and one which, in the author's talented rendering, has achieved an outstanding success.

Another form of literary expression which has gained high standing in post-war Jewish literature is that of diaries. Thousands have read and were moved by the "Diary of Anne Frank." And another diary which is most forceful and moving is that depicting life in the Vilna Ghetto, compiled by Herman Kruk, and issued posthumously by his brother, Pinches Schwartz. Published in New York in 1961 by the Jewish Scientific Institute, the diary gives a most dramatic account of the life, activities, suffering and death in the Vilna Ghetto from June 2, 1941, to July 14, 1943. Lithuanian Jewry was for generations a vital part of the Jewish nation. In Kruk's story we have the tragic record of a great community which in every sphere of Jewish creativeness has contributed a super-abundant share.

In the field of Yiddish poetry the main event last year was the publication of Jacob Glatstein's latest volume "The Joy of the Yiddish World." Glatstein is a bright star in the galaxy of Yiddish poets. Yiddish to him is the language of the heart. It is an instrument and the most joyful exquisite vehicle for the expression of the Jewish soul.

For Glatstein the Jewish poet is the guardian "against all evil." He is an ever-listening spirit ever vigilant and his poetic endeavour is a protection against sadness as well as death.

Like his earlier volume brought out over a year ago, this one is exquisitely printed and includes a number of very expressive illustrations. The opening poem is symbolic. It pictures Moses as the shepherd of Israel; a sacred mission which Glatstein in effect claims, and rightly, for the modern poet.

Although the volume bears the title "The Joy of the Yiddish Word," the poem from which it derives its title does not appear until the very end, and in this the poet points out in a lyrical and moving manner the interdependence between the language and the poet. Freely translated, it can be rendered thus:

However sad the Yiddish world,
However sorrowful its pain,
However crooked its letters, dry bones.

A poet, as with a chain,
Is tied to it with unbreakable fetters
He, the lonely, sorrowful singer,
Can inspire, can revive, its

He can sing like a bird in the sky in sunshine bright
And every letter is alive, beautiful and light.

CHRISTIAN AUTHORS ON JUDAISM

BY BERNARD BASKIN

SAYINGS OF THE FATHERS.
R. Travers Herford.
Schocken Books. $1.95
THE PHARISEES.
R. Travers Herford:
Beacon Press. $1.75

Travers Herford is one of a small band of dedicated Christian students and scholars who have delved deeply and fruitfully into Jewish history, tradition and literature. Attracted by the singular nature of Judaism and its values or stimulated by an interest in Christian origins, these "outsiders" have made noteworthy contributions to the fund of our insight, knowledge and understanding. Other names that come readily to mind include Herbert Danby who translated the Mishna into English, Hermann Strack who wrote valuable introductions to the "Old Testament" and to the Talmud, and George Foot Moore, responsible for the monumental and definitive "Judaism in the First Centuries of the Christian Era."

Both Herford's translation and commentary on Pirke Aboth, as well as his courageous and ground-breaking work "The Pharisees" have long been out of print; it is a delight to welcome them in finely produced paper-bound books.

This new edition of "The Sayings of the Fathers" retains the original Hebrew. This should be a boon to those who have some familiarity with the language or who wish to approach this gem of the Jewish ethical spirit in the original tongue. For untold generations Jews have turned to this little treatise in which the wisdom of sixty-five sages has been eternally preserved and which mirrors the piety, saintliness and common sense of Rabbinic Judaism at its best. It was Herford's purpose "to give to Jewish readers an English edition of Aboth in which they will not be met by frequent comparison with Christian ideas and Christian doctrines, especially when the comparison is not meant to be favorable to the Jewish side." In this laudable aim he has admirably succeeded.

In recent years Pharisaism has been investigated and analyzed from almost every point of view: Sociologically, politically, religiously and, of course, in terms of relationship of the Pharisees to the growth and development of early Christian life and doctrine. It was Herford, however, who almost fifty years ago brought to the world a new and fresh understanding of the true nature and teachings of this ancient group. His book was an effective refutation of those shallow, hide bound and limited scholars who through the centuries have parroted the accusations of legalism, narrowness and hypocrisy found in the New Testament.

Undoubtedly, for the general reader, "The Pharisees" is still the most helpful and clearest introduction to the lives and beliefs of those teachers and leaders who were responsible for the creation of the Talmudic tradition and the normative Judaism of later generations.

Herford can assert "Rabbinical Judaism and Christianity are fundamentally irreconcilable, differing both in their standard of reference and in the terms by which their contents are described," but he holds out this interesting hope. "The time shall come when Christianity shall have done all it can do, under the forms and conditions which it has hitherto adopted, there will then be a Judaism able and ready to offer its imperishable treasure, kept safe through the ages, to a world which will no longer scorn. And at last the two great religions, which will have each accomplished that for which God made them two and not one, will join in His service, and side by side utter the prayers and praises and inspire the lives of His children."

THE CAR ACCIDENT

The major insurance companies of the land are throwing their hats into the air for joy. So are the statisticians. Last year 400 less people were killed than in 1960.

That the whole country rejoices in this is sufficient evidence to have us all locked up in straightjackets. For there is certainly a difference between killing 400 less people and saving 400 lives.

Some years ago I conducted a survey for a newspaper feature on traffic accidents and fatalities. I asked three of the experts: three wreckers. The wrecker is at the scene of the accident as soon as the cop and he sees as much. But he is more objective. The cop is looking for a bottle of whiskey or trying to summon ambulances or take down the name of witnesses. He cannot dispassionately survey the scene. The wrecker not only can but must, for he has to get the crumpled autos out of there in a hurry.

The three wreckers I spoke to had been in the business a combined total of 38 years. They were not only unanimous but matter-of-factly unanimous about the cause of most accidents: speed.

They said it was nothing but speed. Even when a man is drunk he crashes his car and takes lives because the chances are he is going too fast.

All the stories about people who cause accidents because they drive too slow or too hesitantly are fake. If you don't speed, the wreckers said, you have complete control. If you see a crazy man on the highway ahead of you, you can pull over and stop and light a cigar and laugh like hell until he is gone. But you can't stop if you are dead.

After I had talked to these fellows I thought of how any member of Congress could play God. He could get up some morning and say he will save the lives of 20,000 people, half the number that are killed each year. He can propose a law that every car must be equipped with a governor, as all the cars in England are equipped, that will allow the car to go no faster than 40 miles an hour traveling interstate.

This will still allow most cars to kill unchecked interstate. But maybe that's what they mean by state's rights.

HUMAN RELATIONS

A Medical Dilemma

DR. ROSE N. FRANZBLAU

QUESTION: I have a seven-months-old baby girl who has a hemangioma on the fontanel.

We have had her to several specialists. Our pediatrician feels it is a neurosurgical matter. We have taken her to our family doctors. They both favor radiation. The dermatologist and the two neurosurgeons who were recommended by our pediatrician and family doctors are divided. One surgeon and the dermatologist prefer radiation treatment to surgery, which necessitates general anaesthesia. The other surgeon would operate.

My question is, which of the methods is the safer?

Answer: A hemangioma is a group or cluster of tiny overgrown blood vessels, which usually appear as a red blotch, and the fontanel is the small space on the top of the skull where the infant's bones have not yet grown together.

Your agitation as parents over a condition in your little child which needs more than cursory care is certainly understandable.

Parents who have to make a decision like yours suffer more pain emotionally than the child does physically. It is natural to dream of finding a way out which will not subject the child to any discomfort, but when parents cannot come up with such a discovery or idea, they feel they have failed the child. This is a form of magical thinking in which the parent endows himself with an omnipotence which can anticipate and avoid all ailments, or cure them if they appear.

Comparison shoppers can be found in all areas and circumstances. Under the guise that they want the best possible services or care, some people shop around and make comparisons, evaluation and then decisions on matters which should be left to experts.

It is good practice, at times, to call in a consultant to get another expert opinion in a particular situation. However, the objective ought to be to get exactly that — an expert, not a different opinion. It is not wise to shop around for opinion after opinion. This leads to confusion rather than clarification. Pick one doctor in which you have confidence and let him make the decision, with the help of whatever experts he wants to call upon.

Sometimes, of course, consultation does create complications, since different treatments may be suggested by different experts. The lay person often sees in this a great defect in the science of medicine or a competitiveness among experts, who seem to be unable to make up their minds. Actually the difference may be just one of method, each of which would have the same good outcome, but with each specialist naturally preferring the technique from which he has had the best results.

This is a medical matter, and only medically trained authorities can advise you. To turn to anyone else is unrealistic and can do you no good. If you give trust and confidence where it belongs, you will be making the right decision for your little girl.

There is no need to worry about the possibility that a bald spot might result from such an operation. It can be taken care of in various ways, medically or cosmetically, later on.

Once you have made your decision, which consists of placing confidence in the doctor of your choice, your child will be in safe and secure hands and you can expect a good result.

Who is Eddie Gould . . . and what's his job at M.C.F. & G?

Eddie Gould, besides being our Vice-President, and supervisor of our Radio-Television Department, is also a very neat person. We cluttered up his desk only to take this picture which demonstrates another important job he does at M.C.F. & G.

Eddie directs planning for a wide world of client products and services, and supervises agency-client relationships. In plain English, all creative work . . . all account planning must pass Eddie's experienced eyes and ears before they are ready to present to an M.C.F. & G. client.

Eddie doesn't play an "oracle" roll. His counsel is based on twenty-seven years of advertising experience.

But Eddie doesn't hesitate to use the opinions and advice of the forty or so people at the agency.

Eddie Gould served as a senior account executive and radio director (there was no T.V. then) for 15 years with another major Canadian advertising agency before becoming a partner at Muter, Culiner in 1949.

Whether to discuss radio, television or advertising in any of its aspects, we suggest you will have much to gain by seeing Eddie Gould, in your office or his.

A ZIONIST TASK

ENCOURAGING ALIYAH FROM CANADA

This week Toronto is host to Shlomo Zalman Shragai and Rabbi Duschinsky, respectively, head of the Jewish Agency's Aliyah department and director of the North American bureau of Aliyah. Shragai and Duschinsky have jointly written some great chapters in organizing Aliyah from the West to Israel.

Many Zionists resent Prime Minister Ben Gurion's telling them that the first duty of a Zionist is to labor for the migration of Jews from the Diaspora to the Jewish homeland. Despite the fact that Mr. Ben Gurion may be wrong in other expressions of his ideological wars (and especially in the manner in which he chooses to conduct them), no one can deny the fact that Zionism is meaningless — and often sounds phony — without the focus on Aliyah as central task of the movement.

When addressing Zionist leaders this week, our guests, Messrs. Shragai and Duschinsky, will probably tell them that their greatest success in bringing Olim from the West to Israel has been the emigration of religious Jews from America. Such settlements as Kiryat Sandz and Kiryat Bobov, established by the hassidic rebbes of Klausenburg and Bobov, for which the religious department of the Jewish Agency's Aliyah section is responsible, have proven that most of the immigrants did not belong to any Zionist party. But they did go to Israel to settle and to live.

Of course, bickering and antagonizing Zionists is not the road to take to encourage Aliyah. At the same time, the visit in Toronto of such prominent leaders in the promotion of Jewish settlement in the Holy Land should inspire our Zionists to a serious and profound analysis of the Aliyah problem.

Mr. Ben Gurion may be right or wrong; his polemics and his redundant attacks upon Zionist leaders surely are often out of place. But can we say with all honesty that one can be a Zionist without at least exploring the problem of Aliyah from the West?

We hope that the mission of Shragai and Duschinsky in our city will contribute, at least, to placing upon the agenda of Zionism in Canada the paramount issue of Aliyah.

A MATURE COMMUNITY

AFTER THE CJC ASSEMBLY

The 13th Plenary Session of the Canadian Jewish Congress will enter the annals of our community as one of the most important assemblies of Canadian Jewry. It was a great rally indeed. The proceedings of the Canadian Jewish Assembly, the main addresses, the discussions and the resolutions have proven again the maturity of our community and its excellent parliamentary organization.

The Canadian Jewish Congress Assembly took a stand on all important issues facing our community both here and the Jews the world over.

First it stressed its interest in the promotion of Jewish education as "vital for Jewish survival". It also decided to participate in the forthcoming World Assembly on Jewish Education. It went on record as supporting the formation of an all-embracing rabbinical and synagogue union. It welcomed the establishment of a Central Fund for Traditional Institutions in order to co-ordinate and control the fund raising activities for diverse charitable and educational institutions.

An important resolution deals with strengthening the "working partnership" in the field of community relations with B'nai B'rith, the United Zionist Council and the Jewish Labor Committee.

Another decision of importance is the resolution enabling the Canadian Jewish Congress to intensify its activities in the field of combatting pro-Fascist and hate-mongering movements.

The Congress also took a definite stand on religious education in public schools and re-emphasized Canadian Jewry's opposition to the idea of religious education in schools as anti-democratic.

Another field in which Congress will become more active than ever is the area of combatting discrimination. It will also support the move to incorporate the Bill of Rights into the Canadian Constitution.

The decision of the Congress Assembly to urge the Canadian government to facilitate immigration of Algerian Jews will be unanimously hailed by Canadian Jewry.

Last but not least, the Canadian Jewish Congress, in the name of all Jews of Canada, officially proclaims its solidarity and devotion to Israel and engages the Jewish community of Canada to continue its aid to Israel.

The resolutions have been adopted. But it depends upon us to give them real meaning — by action.

A GREAT DOCUMENT

CANADA AND THE JEWISH PEOPLE

In his historic address at the opening of the 13th Plenary Session of Canadian Jewish Congress, in Toronto, His Excellency, Georges P. Vanier, the Governor General of Canada, made a statement on the position of Canadian Jewry. Following is the text of this historic declaration:

"In this City, less than three years ago, we celebrated the 200th anniversary of the first settlement of Jews in Canada. We were then concerned with the past.

"It is right that we should have been, that we should always be, for the past is an integral part of a people's destiny.

"The contribution of Canadian Jewry during these 200 years is an important chapter in the life of our country: so also will it be reckoned proudly in that of the Jews. Though but an episode in that more ancient record, it is worthy of its place, in keeping with its grandeur.

"In the annals of time there is no more powerful story than that of the Jews. Its four thousand years of history reveal every facet of man's nature in achievement and tragedy. It is a record of courage, perseverance and hope — qualities without which the Jews, scattered throughout the world, would never have survived; qualities which alone made possible the re-establishment of Israel; qualities which in that marvellous land today challenge the imagination.

"It is, as I have said, a powerful story. A source of great pride for all of you. But it is also more than that. It is a heritage, a sacred trust from your fathers not to be treated as credentials of whence you come but as an inspiration for whither you go.

"The past, however glorious, loses its meaning or character if it cannot live in the present and cannot be passed on to the future. Yesterday must be linked with today and tomorrow if life is to have any meaning. One great link is tradition.

"The story of the Jews tells of man's anxiety about his relationship with his God and with his neighbour. The Old Testament gift of the Jews to other religions and to many hundreds of millions of people throughout the world, is a witness to this interior struggle. The laws it enunciates, the purpose it declares, have provided the foundations of order and morality. To quote from Leviticus: "And the Lord spake unto Moses, saying . . . thou shalt love thy neighbour as thyself; I am the Lord."

"The story of the Jews, which is an inspiration, is also a warning. The persecution and tragedy of the past are history's lessons which should be heeded by all. They testify to what can happen when man forsakes his values, they are a cogent reminder of how easily mistakes are repeated.

"Although mankind cannot go back and correct its mistakes, it can and must go forward and, aware of past sins, avoid future ones.

"In going forward, mindful of tradition, let us continue: "to strive, to seek, to find and not to yield.'

"One cannot but think of what is going on in Israel. Before our eyes, in barely a generation, we have seen the realization of a hope which wise men once called chimerical. Such is the fruit of courage and perseverance.

"There is a tradition in Jewish history to which I wish to pay particular tribute — namely its dedication to the preservation of family life.

"This is a subject to which I am devoting special attention during my tenure of office. May I quote the sentiments expressed by Her Majesty The Queen in reply to a toast proposed by the President of India at a State Dinner given in Delhi in January 1961:

" 'The family group is the vital and continuing factor in a country's social structure. Families are the bricks from which all human societies are built. If the bricks are sound the edifice will endure.'

'The family is the fundamental institution of our society. This is the message of time, richly documented in the Old Testament, as it is also by the history of the Jewish people. The family is the essential element of the community without which it cannot exist. And the strength of the family is the exact measure of the strength of the community. The loyalties, moral and religious values of the one are the image of the other. The disintegration of the family leads to poverty, disease and juvenile delinquency. Each of us have a part to play, a definite responsibility to discharge. In congratulating the Jewish people I urge them to strengthen the bonds which they already respect and maintain.

"A diversified nation, we are from many lands, of many races and of many creeds. But this diversity does not preclude unity. We hold in common a belief in God. We hold in common a Crown, embodiment of law and order, or moral values and binding loyalties. We hold in common a belief: "Thou shalt love thy neighbour.' We hold in common a country, vast and promising, in which we have faith and hope."

CANADIAN PANORAMA

HAT IN THE RING

Julius Aaron Cohen, 62-year-old merchant of London Ontario, has announced that he will seek to be Mayor of that city when election day rolls around in December.

Cohen, who is 62, has been living in Western Ontario most of his life since he came here as a boy from Brooklyn and went to school in Dundas Ont.,

A children's apparel retailer, Cohen is a colorful resident of London which has and has had a good many interesting personalities among its small Jewish community.

He is among other things, a song writer who has had some of his music published. One of his songs was recently accepted by the Dutch West Indies island of Ariba and translated into Papemento, the local Dutch - Spanish - pidgin - English idiom. He is also the author of an history of London's Jews.

His civic ambitions were aroused by the state of traffic in London's streets: "I made up my mind several days ago," he told the London Free Press, "London is no longer a small town and I feel it could use a business man with experience to help run it through the problems it faces."

He is the older brother of Oscar Cohen, now with the Anti Defamation League in New York, who is remembered as executive officer of the Canadian Jewish Congress in Toronto immediately before and after the war.

WAS CHILDREN'S POETESS

Montreal recently mourned the death of Ida Mazzeh known as the Mother of Yiddish literature who died in her 69th year. A bent sympathetic figure she was known for her children's poetry of which several volumes had appeared since 1931.

PEOPLE

AL REGENSTREIF: a Montrealer turned Calgarian, is returning to his adopted prairie and Western haunts. Two years ago he gave up retail merchandising to enter the Israel Bond sales field in Toronto. He is now taking over the B.C.-Alberta area for the sale of State of Israel Bonds.

MARVIN WEINTRAUB Ph.D., botanist, is a former Torontonian and St. Catharines resident who stopped in Toronto en route from Vancouver long enough to take part in a panel discussion on Jewish adult education at the Congress Plenary Session last week.

MENACHEM KRAICER, and his wife Shirley (nee Freiman) are visiting Toronto. For many years JIAS Director in Toronto Kraicer is now director of HIAS in Israel.

OTTO KLEINBURG, specialist in racial pychology is leaving Columbia University with which he has been associated most of his academic career, to take a professorship at the Sorbonne in Paris. A native of Montreal and graduate from McGill, Prof Kleinburg is a brother of Mrs. A. B. Bennett of Toronto.

PROTESTANT SCHOOL BRIEF

The Protestant School Board of Greater Montreal has submitted its brief to the Quebec Royal Commission of Inquiry on Education. Gist of the submission is that

- The Board wishes the Protestant Schools of Quebec to retain the "Protestant emphasis"
- At the same time it wishes to keep the attendance of Jewish children and suggests that some representation be given to their parents on the Board through a Jewish representative who should participate in the Board's deliberations but without a vote. In justice to the Protestant Board, it should be pointed out that this is not meant as a slight to the Jewish representative but is the only thing they can propose for this representative — short of an amendment to the B.N.A. act which would be needed, in their view, if Jews were to be given a vote on such boards.
- The Board is opposed to the Quebec government's action in giving grants to private secondary schools. This means, without it having been expressly said, that the Board is also opposed to the request that Jewish all-day elementary schools be provided with grants as requested by the Canadian Jewish Congress, Quebec section.

There it is. The Protestant Board's submission it would seem to an observer looking at it from Ontario, wants to have it both ways. It wants to keep the schools Protestant and confessional in character. Notwithstanding this it does not want to lose the 17,725 Jewish children who attend its schools comprising 25% of the elementary and 35% of the secondary school enrolment. A cynic might be tempted to look for their motive in their reluctance to lose the sources of Jewish real estate taxation that go to their maintenance. Nor do they want government funds to go to any Jewish day schools, for fear, too, probably that this may detract from their own financing.

What the Protestant Commissioners fail to see is that by insisting on the denominational nature of their schools they are making it all the more difficult for Jewish children to feel completely at home in a school that calls itself confessional and wants the exclusive right to embrace the children of other religions.

WASTE AND YOU SHALL PROSPER

Some months ago when the Chairman of the Temple's Lecture Forum which I was to address told me of his association with an important manufacturer of household appliances, I said: "You are the gentleman I have been hoping to meet," and I gave him the melancholy facts about my washing machine bearing his firm's name. "When did you buy this machine," he asked. "About five years ago," I replied.

"That's wonderful," the Chairman exclaimed.

" 'What' is wonderful?" I asked, preplexed.

"I mean it is wonderful that our programme of obsolescence works according to schedule." He explained that for some years "built-in obsolescence" has been the most important feature in planning appliances. "A washing machine shouldn't last forever," he enlightened me. "Our economy is built on high consumption, and durable goods must not be durable beyond a certain limit."

When I protested, the chairman advised me to study the facts and figures of the American economy. "We have prosperity," he declared, because we waste. If your washing machine wouldn't give you trouble after five years, believe me this Temple couldn't afford the kind of Lecture Series we are presenting this year."

Upon arrival at the Temple, the Rabbi apologised for not being able to receive me in his study, which was being refurbished. "Frankly," he held that the decor was 'dated' and reflected unfavourably upon the Congregation." The age of the "dated" decor? About six years old. Waste-and you shall prosper!

ABIE'S IRISH ROSE — FORTY YEARS AFTER

Although Broadway is an unsentimental street where nostalgia and memories are "strictly business," it is at present having what one drama critic, Mr. Howard Taubman, describes as "a nostalgic sigh for what will never be again and what, according to shrewd judgments of the time, never should have been." The nostalgia is for "Abie's Irish Rose," Anne Nichols' melodrama about a Jewish boy and an Irish girl whose love proved stronger than all religious obstacles. It opened on May 22, 1912 and ran for 2,327 performances. The critics and most Jews and many Irish did not (and do not) take kindly to the play. There were protests galore, but the public laughed and cried and enjoyed itself hugely.

The "New York Times" marked the fortieth anniversary of "Abie" with an article by Mr. Taubman, such a phenomenon as "Abie" could not happen today. Indeed, "sticky stories remain in demand, and Broadway reverts to them. But the theatre cannot purvey them with the crudity of forty years ago."

American audiences (only American audiences?) still wax enthusiastic over novels and stories and plays which prove that love conquers all, to wit, the phenomenal success of "A Majority of One" and, in another category, "Gigi". But Mr. Taubman is right. The taste of our time is more refined in portraying members of minority groups. The coarse vaudeville distortion of Jewish and Irish mores would not be tolerated on Broadway today.

REPORT FROM NORTH AFRICA — BY M. R. BULL

The Jews In Tunisia Are Leaving

For centuries the Jews of Tunis had been obliged to live in "hara," one of the capital's many insanitary and overcrowded districts. It was only towards the end of the nineteenth century that they were given freedom to live elsewhere. But many of the quarter's poor Jews chose to stay on in their small flat-roofed houses, where often a whole family lived, slept and worked in one room.

Last year the "hara" was included within the Tunisian Government's plans for rebuilding. During the period of the French Protectorate, which ended in 1956, part of the "hara" were warned that their homes were coming down and were told to get out. Those who could afford it, or had families to whom they could go, left. The rest stayed on-hoping.

A friend described what happened just a few months ago: "One day they were there — the next they had gone. It was like a dead town. The authorities had simply removed all doors and windows. As it was winter the inhabitants just had to leave. There was no one to tell me where my friends had gone."

Next day bulldozers moved in. When I saw it, what had been the "hara" was a dusty rough expanse where a junk market had sprung up. Tunisians were selling everything from shoddy furniture to old bottles. Among the buildings demolished were several synagogues. The oldest dated from about the late Middle Ages. No one knew about rebuilding plans and there was no evidence that the evicted inhabitants received either help or compensation.

Three years ago the same thing happened to the Jewish cemetery. However, this was no discriminatory move against the Jews — Christian and Moslem burial grounds within the city's limits had also been converted into public gardens for reasons of hygiene, the bones being reburied in cemeteries outside Tunis.

The President of the Association Culturelle Israelite assured me there was no official discrimination against his people. For the past three years the community has had its own elected "Depute" in the Government. There were also many Jewish officials in the justice department (magistrates and so on), banks, customs and local administration. These, of course, all have Tunisian nationality. "Le President Bourguiba," Mr. Zana, said. "est tres liberal." The Jewish community appreciated this. After the Bizerta fighting it gave the Government a large sum of money to help the wounded.

In fact, the Jews in Tunisia have much less reason for nervousness than those in other North African countries. Yet hundreds continue to leave. In 1955 there were some 120,000 Jews in the country. Today there are only about 45,000 left. Most of those leaving are of foreign nationality. About one-third go to France.

The weekly ship on which I sailed from Tunis to Marseilles had several hundred Jews on board. Many were fourth-class passengers. These have to sleep on deck chairs either on deck or in part of the hold. They must also provide their own food. But all were overjoyed to be leaving. As the ship pulled away those left behind waved and shouted: "We'll be joining you soon."

It is much more difficult for Tunisian Jews to leave as they can take neither money nor valuables out of the country. But many do manage it — often just leaving everything behind and taking the first ship as soon as they get their exit visas.

The Jewish community left behind in Tunisia is well organised for self-help, not to mention the aid received from the American Joint Distribution Committee which has an office in Tunis. They send flour, oil, sugar and other food to help the poor who comprise some 15 per cent of the community.

Then, of course, there are the schools of the Alliance Israelite — the first one was established in 1878 — which are also attended by some Moslems and Christians and which teach Hebrew and French as well as Arabic, now obligatory in all schools. Ort schools have some 400 pupils and the Ose provides children throughout the country with free medical treatment and medicines without regard to race.

The policy of the Tunisian Government since independence in 1956 has tended towards the assimilation of Tunisian Jews. Thus, schools now come under the Ministry of National Education. The Jewish Boy Scouts have been disbanded and the members encouraged to join the Tunisian Scouts.

REPORT FROM GERMANY

Nazi Atrocities Proven In Courts Of West Germany

GERMAN FIELD MARSHALS "TACITLY APPROVED MASS EXECUTION OF JEWS"

Berlin, (JCNS) "If only a single Nazi field marshal had had the courage to say 'no' to the mass executions of Jews in his operational area during the war, these massacres would not have taken place." This was stated by Erwin Schulz, a former SS brigade leader and head of the Nazi Eisantzkommando 5, testifying at the trial of six former officers of the Nazi Eisantzkommando 9 here last week.

He himself had successfully asked for his transfer to Berlin when he had learned in August 1941 that his commando was to exterminate the entire Jewish population in his area.

Dr. Seraphim, a German historian, who has done considerable research work on the Nazi period, testified that he knew of no cases where an SS or police member had been court-martialled for his refusal to participate in the execution of Jews. Those refusing to take part in the killings were usually transferred to battle-line units.

Albert Hartle, aged 57, a former SS group leader working in Eichmann's department, said he knew that several SS officers were transferred to other units after they had refused to participate in mass executions of Jews. Their superiors had usually admonished them first, but soon calmed down and dismissed the disobedient officers as "weaklings."

The chief prosecutor has demanded sentences of hard labour for life for two of the accused Dr. Filbert, former head of Eisantzkommando 9, and his deputy, Gerhard Schneider. They were both responsible for the murder of about 19,000 Jews, he said. For the other four accused he demanded hard labour sentences ranging from five to ten years.

The sentences are expected next week.

EXTRADITION DEMAND AGAINST FORMER SS OFFICER

Bonn, (JCNS) The German Federal Government has asked the Italian Government to extradite Robert Henkelmann, a former SS officer, now living in Italy.

FORMER WAFFEN-SS ATTEND NAZI RALLY

Moenchengladbach, Germany, (JCNS) Several hundred former members of the Nazi Waffen-SS and their families attended an international rally here last week. Delegations of former SS units in Belgium, France and Denmark represented the foreign SS contingents. Guests of honour included former Nazi officers, among them ex-Colonel H. U. Rudel, known for his support of neo-Nazi groups, and a local Free Democrat town councillor.

Herr Steinsdorfer, chairman of the organisation of former SS members in North Rhine-Westphalia, asserted that the Waffen-SS was still suffering from the effects of the post-war campaign of defamation. The movement for a united Europe, he said, had already existed 20 years ago, having been formed by the German army during the war. Today's NATO troops were merely the successors of the SS units from all parts of Europe who had fought against a common enemy, Bolshevism.

SERMON FOR THE WEEK

The Little Man

And Receive All Men With Cheerfulness (Ethico iii, 16)

Religion is concerned with the little as well as with the great things. It teaches that God is not only to be seen on the mountains but that He reveals Himself in the valleys. It recognizes the value of the kindly smile, the encouraging word, the friendly gesture, the token of sympathy, the human touch. Rabbi Ishmael was one of the most famous of the Rabbis. His views on Judaism have guided Jews throughout the ages. And yet of all his profound maxims it was this one that the editor of the Mishnah saw fit to record: "Receive all men with cheerfulness". The saying is even more significant in that it comes from a prominent member of the priestly aristocracy of ancient Judea.

Virtue and good cheer do not always go hand in hand. The notorious condemnatory Puritan conscience is more than a malicious invention of the sceptic. Some devout people, harsh on themselves, have little room in their hearts for the simple human joys. The long face is all too often the badge of charmless sanctity.

It is said that Rabbi Israel Salanter, the founder of the Musar movement, was led to a basic idea of the movement — that one should not use another's shoulders as stepping stones to piety — through an experience he had during the penitential season. When Rabbi Israel was a young man he encountered at this season a gloomy zealot, who was so preoccupied with thoughts of his sins and grief for having committed them, that his greeting to the young Rabbi was curt in the extreme. "Is it proper", protested Rabbi Israel, "that your sins should deprive me of my right as a human being to receive a cheerful 'Good morning?"

The Chassidic movement, in particular, stressed the role of joy in religion, which partly explains its phenomenal success during the last century. At that time, in Eastern Europe, when persecution, discriminatory legislation, and abject poverty combined to make it hard to be a Jew, ordinary men and women needed desperately the assurance that they counted in God's eyes, that they could rejoice in Him and He in them. The Chassidic doctrine of the Zaddik as God's representative on earth was no doubt highly objectionable theologically, but the welcoming smile of the saint and even his "holy rages" persuaded his Followers that they had some significance in themselves, and were more than mere figures in a communal register and useful drudges to help increase communal funds. "God dislikes melancholy and depressed spirits", taught Rabbi Nahman of Bratzlav. "It is the duty of the joyful person to endeavour to bring to those in sadness a portion of his mood".

It hardly needs saying that when the Jewish masters spoke of joy they were motivated by higher feelings than the desire to "win friends and influence people." No one can have much respect for the insincere "back-slapper" or the religionist with an unholier than thou attitude. The Jewish teachers stressed the value of joy in their realisation that the man of faith must delight in the fact that God cares for His creatures and wants them to care for each other. "Let the heavens rejoice, and let the earth be glad, and let them say among the nations, The Lord reigneth".

How much human misery could be averted if only R. Ishmael's lesson were taken to heart! It is a pity that our fear of sentimentality inhibits us from saying the right word when it is needed; the loving word between husband and wife, the word of confidence and trust between parents and children, the word of appreciation for work well done from employer to employee, the word of congratulation from teacher to promising and even to not so promising pupil. There is little spectacular in these things, but the God we worship is the God who first appeared to Moses in the lowly bush that was afire with Him.

region; David Matlin (Vancouver), Charles Walfish (Vancouver), Pacific region.

Among the most important resolutions adopted by the Canadian Jewish Congress are:

SOLIDAIRTY WITH ISRAEL

The Canadian Jewish Congress sends sincere and heartfelt greetings to the State and people of Israel.

We once again solemnly affirm our devotion to Israel and call upon the Jewish community of Canada to continue to aid it in every possible way.

CONCERN OVER SOVIET JEWRY

The Canadian Jewish Congress is deeply concerned with recent events in the U.S.S.R. which reflect a continuing anti-Jewish attitude on the part of the authorities.

The publication of a bi-monthly in Yiddish, the printing in recent years of several books in the same language, the maintenance of a yeshiva — small though it be — in Moscow, and the rehabilitation of the memory and prestige of the executed Jewish writers, were regarded as a repudiation of the Stalinist tyranny.

It is all the more shocking, therefore, that within less than a year several Jewish religious leaders were sentenced to long terms of imprisonment, and the death penalty was imposed in some instances on a number of Jews accused of economic offences.

The denial of the State facilities for the baking of matzoth this year indicates a desire on the part of the Government to deprive the Jews of the few religious liberties heretofore enjoyed.

The isolation of Russian Jews from their brethren in the rest of the world, their continued inability to join their families in Israel and in other countries and the closing of many Synagogues and the few Jewish schools that still existed, justify the conclusion that the repressive policies of the Stalin era are substantially being applied today with the ultimate aim of liquidating all Jewish cultural life.

The 13th Plenary Session of the Canadian Jewish Congress urges the National Executive to take all steps that will help to alleviate the plight of our brethren in the U.S.S.R.

SUPPORT FOR JEWISH DAY SCHOOLS

WHEREAS the intensification of Jewish education is vital for Jewish survival in Canada,

AND WHEREAS the Jewish Day School provides an opportunity for those desirous of obtaining a maximal Jewish education to achieve their objective,

AND WHEREAS the Jewish Day Schools are beset by financial problems that jeopardize their continued existence,

THEREFORE BE IT RESOLVED THAT

1) The Canadian Jewish Congress establish a National Study Commission to explore ways and means of ensuring that the legitimate financial requirements of the Jewish Day Schools will be adequately met through the development of new sources of revenue;

2) that the Commission shall consider the advisability and feasibility of seeking support from public, as well as private sources, and ways and means to implement these policies in relation to such support, but having due regard to the divergent views that exist in the Jewish community on this question;

3) the Commission shall have regard for the difference in the common school systems in various jurisdictions in Canada;

4) the Commission shall be broadly organized communal life;

5) the Commission shall commence its deliberations forthwith and shall proceed therewith diligently and expediously and report to the National Executive Committee within one year.

KASHRUT OBSERVED

Upon the initiative of the orthodox division of the Canadian Jewish Congress, of which Mr. Meyer W. Gasner is chairman and Mr. Nachman Shemen, director, and with the co-operation of the Rabbinical Vaad Hakashrut, Rabbi Gedalia Felder, chairman, the delegates to the 13th Plenary Session were served kosher meals at the hotel.

The management and the chef deserve to be commended for their co-operation with the rabbinical supervisors. This service was deeply appreciated by the delegates.

ALGERIA

WHEREAS the Jewish community of Algeria is facing a crisis in view of the current political turmoil in that country, and

WHEREAS the Canadian Jewish community wishes to express its solidarity and sympathy with the Jews of Algeria,

BE IT RESOLVED

that the 13th Plenary Session of the Canadian Jewish Congress recommend to the officers of Congress that they take steps to urge that our government move to facilitate the emigration of numbers of those Jews of Algeria who wish to make their home in this country.

RESOLUTION ON IMMIGRATION

Owing to world circumstances many people have been displaced and forced to seek asylum in countries which offered them an opportunity of rehabilitation and re-settlement,

BE IT RESOLVED that this Plenary Session of the Canadian Jewish Congress jointly with the Jewish Immigrant Aid Services of Canada expresses its thanks to the Canadian Government for its considerate attitude toward the plight of the Jewish refugee;

that it will continue to give consideration to the representations of the Canadian Jewish Congress and the Jewish Immigrant Aid Services on behalf of people displaced and uprooted because of present world events; that it will continue its humanitarian approach and provide a haven of refuge to all the displaced and uprooted;

that the resources of the Jewish community of Canada will be placed at the disposal of the Jewish immigrants in helping them to make a satisfactory social and economic adjustment in the country; and we commend the Canadian Government for its initiative in accepting as a basic principle of immigration laws a policy of non - discrimination on the grounds of race, colour, creed, or national origin.

HATE MONGERING AND NAZISM

WHEREAS there still are to be found in this country elements which carry on pro-Fascist and hate mongering activity, and

WHEREAS there is no legislation as yet whicth has been found to cope adequately with these malefactors, and

WHEREAS Canada was a signator of the Genocide Convention of the United Nations and it is therefore only proper and just that the spirit of this Convention protecting human rights should be incorporated into the laws of Canada

THEREFORE BE IT RESOLVED

a) that the Canadian Jewish Congress continue to seek ways and means which will make it possible, without infringing on the democratic freedoms of Canadians, to introduce legistlation branding the Nazi ideology as dangerous to Canadian society as was done by the International Court in 1946, such legislation to make illegal and Nazi or similar movements which preach hatemongering, race slaughter or genocide towards any ethnic or religious groups;

b) that steps be taken to bring together the democratic elements of all ethnic groups in Canada to ensure the true understanding of Canadian democracy ,a structure free of racial and religiou sprejudice;

c) that the Canadian Jewish Congress take steps to encourage educational institutions in the provinces of Canada to introduce in their teaching of modern history an understanding of the background and repurcussions of Nazism in the 1930's and 1940's, and that the true lessons of race prejudice not be overlooked in the curriculum.

RELIGIOUS EDUCATION IN PUBLIC SCHOOLS

WHEREAS religious education has been introduced as part of the curriculum for public schools in some areas, and

WHEREAS it has been found that this practice is a prejudicial one, havin ga divisive effect on children in the public school, and

WHEREAS it violates the democratic principle of the separation of Church and State,

BE IT RESOLVED that the Canadian Jewish Congress continue its active opposition to religious education in the Public Schools in those provinces where Public Schools exis tin such manner as each Region deems most effective.

RELIGIOUS ORGANIZATION

The Canadian Jewish Congress welcomes the formation of all embracing Rabbinical and Synagogue Associations in major Jewish communities of Canada and encourages communities where such associations have not yet been formed to do so for the purpose of common action on such matters on which there is general agreement. It is recognized that the Jewish community is not monolithic and it is not the intention of such associations to introduce uniformity in Jewish life, but it is felt that within such organizations there is room for diversity leading to unity of action and singleness of purpose.

It is hoped that these efforts will lead towards the formation of a national all embracing Rabbinical and Synagogue Association in Canada within the framework of the Canadian Jewish Congress.

RABBI GEDALIAH FELDER

MARRIED COUPLE'S GROUP BETH SHOLOM

On Sunday, June 17th, the first general meeting of the Beth Sholom Young Married Couples Group was held in the synagogue assembly hall. Mr. Marvin Elkind, president, informed the group of some plans for the coming season, which will include a dinner-dance to be held on September 19th and classes in the instruction of Hebrew for beginners and advanced students to commence in September.

SHAAREI TEFILLAH NEARS COMPLETION

In the fall of this year the Toronto Community will mark an important occasion; the Dedication of the new Shaarei Tefillah Synagogue. The Synagogue, which is now nearing completion represents, on every level, the triumph of faith. Every brick in the structure testifies eloquently to the transcending loyalty to principle and faith.

In 1951, Shaarei Tefillah was born — the first Synagogue in the North Bathurst Area. It was brought into being by a small group of dedicated young Jews who were determined to preserve the historic sanctity of Judaism and its authentic religious expression. With Characteristic vigour, this group braved the difficulties, problems and obstacles, with which they were confronted, their idealism and hope never blunted.

On June 15, 1961 the final phase of the Shaarei Tefillah Building Program began. The ground was broken for the new Sanctuary. This House of God, which will serve as the home of dynamic Judaism, rises even now in its magnificent splendour.

This "Synagogue in the Round" by virtue of its unique construction, will create the mood for prayer and the spirit of warmth and intimacy. The Sanctuary is an octagon in plan, and grew out of the traditional concept of placing the Bema in the centre and seats around it. No one, then, will be further than nine rows from the Cantor at any given point in the Synagogue. The sense of involvement in the services is heightened by the circular crown of stained glass windows entirely surrounding the upper part of the Sanctuary and the imposing ark which is highlighted by an elaborate tapestry rising about twenty feet high.

The purpose of Shaarei Tefillah transcends the breathless beauty of its new Sanctuary. A religious centre, in which a way of life can be projected and developed, is the realistic vision of the membership. With all the necessary facilities available, an all-embracing program is being planned and introduced which will appeal to every age level in the Community, says Rabbi Bernard Rosensweig, Spiritual Leader of the Congregation.

At the annual election of the Synagogue, the Congregation recently elected a new Executive and Board. Mr. Frank Mushell, one of the founders of Shaarei Tefillah, was elected President. Mr. Mushell, who served as Congregational President three years ago, was the Israel Bond Chairman for two years and successfully headed the impressive Cornerstone Dedication Committee.

The first Vice-President is Mr. Jack Ross, last year's second Vice-President and active Chairman of the High Holiday Committee; Second Vice-President, Sam Zeldin, well known in UJA circles and the dynamic head of the Building Committee; Secretary, Harry Mager, first President of Shaarei Tefillah; and Treasurer, Alex Greenspan, Treasurer of the Building Campaign.

A GREAT EVENT

"Associated" Dinner A Great Success

Speaking at the Annual Dinner of Associated Hebrew Schools on June 12th, Raanan Sivan, Charge D'Affaires of the Israel Embassy in Ottawa stressed the importance of Jewish education for Canadian and other Jewish communities. He urged the fostering of modern Hebrew as part of an education program similar to that of Associated. "A strong cultural link between Israel and the Jewries of the Diaspora is necessary for the future growth and security of the State of Israel", stated Mr. Sivan. The latter spoke in the absence of Mr. Yaacov Herzog, slated to appear as a guest speaker, who had been recalled by the Israel Government for consultation.

Hundreds of people who filled the Hall responded warmly to a fervent and eloquent appeal by Mr. Meyer W. Gasner for support of the educational program of Associated, which he termed "the largest and most important Jewish school on the American Continent". A substantial sum of initial contributions towards the campaign will be continued until the full objective is attained.

The Presidential address delivered by Mr. Joseph Levine, outlined the educational work and achievements of Associated and the great expansion of the schools in recent years.

On behalf of the schools, presentations of a portrait and testimonial scroll were made to Mr. Wilferd Gordon Q. C., and a scroll was presented to Mr. Bernard Weinberg, Q.C., by Mr. David E. Newman, Q.C.

Dr. Fred Weinberg was Chairman of the Dinner, which was one of the most successful in the history of Associated. An interesting and popular feature of the evening was the showing of "Colored Slides" depicting the full program of study and activities at the School.

Other participants in the program were Mr. Mark A. Levy, Co-Chairman of the Campaign, and Mr. Samuel J. Sable, President of the United Jewish Welfare Fund.

TAX ANALYST SPEAKS

Bequests For Charity Practical

"Most clients will react very favourably to the suggestion that a portion of their estate be divested as a bequest, endowment or foundation," said H. Heward Stikeman, leading Canadian tax analyst, speaking to a group of lawyers and accountants here last week. The meeting was held on behalf of the United Jewish Welfare Fund for the combined membership of the Reading Law Club and the Chartered Accountants' Discussion Club.

TAX SAVINGS NOTED

Mr. Stikemen reviewed the advantages to be gained from bequests, endowments and foundations, made through the United Jewish Welfare Fund.

"My own experience in making such suggestions has been one hundred per cent positive. The substantial tax saving plus the opportunity for the client to immortalize his name and to continue as a useful citizen in perpetuity prove to be important factors in estate planning," said Mr. Stikeman.

Toronto tax expert Wolfe D. Goodman, chairman of the seminar, described the rapid growth of trusts and foundations on this continent.

"Charitable trusts and foundations can be freely established and are given a free hand in running their affairs. Moreover, our tax laws actively encourage such practices. Similar encouragement in the United States has resulted in phenomenal growth of such institutions and it seems that the pattern will prevail eventually in Canada," he said.

COMMUNITY SERVICES "COMPANY"

Harry Wolfson, Toronto economist and business consultant, described the United Jewish Welfare Fund as a kind of holding company for community services.

"The Welfare Fund," he said, "as the financial supporter, co-ordinator and planner for a host of community services, can execute the will of your clients long after conditions pertaining at the time the will was made have altered completely or even disappeared. New services which might better serve the client could come into operation at some future date. The Welfare Fund is the central planning body, composed of responsible members of the community, and can always act in the best interests of the client's estate."

LEVY CHAIRS COMMITTEE

Some typical allocations clients could make through the Welfare Fund are: Jewish education, (e.g. the John Smith Scholarship for Jewish Studies); fellowships for advanced training of teachers in Jewish schools; endowments for the support of convalescents in sheltered workshops; research grants for the study of needs of children; grants for publicity programs for the placement of children in foster homes; counselling service grants for youth or specialized training of teenagers; endowments for the aged programs in family services or support of a vacation program for the aged; camp scholarships; training and education of immigrants; endowments to be earmarked for specific capital programs.

The Bequest and Endowment Fund Committee is under the chairmanship of Mark A. Levy with Nathan Perlmutter as vice-chairman and the Technical Advisory Committee is under the chairmanship of Donald Carr.

"Honey," said the young man, "if you will marry me I'll put in electricity, get some modern kitchen things, paint the house inside out, and buy a milking machine."

"Henry," sighed the wise young lady. "suppose you do all those things — and ask me again."

ISRAEL HIT BY KHAMSIN

Jerusalem, (JCNS) Considerable loss was reported from various parts of the country as a result of the blistering khamsin which began this week. About £125,000 damage was suffered by kibbutz Saris, in Western Emek, when a brush fire spread and burnt 100 tons of hay and loft which were stored.

Kibbutz Shamir, in Upper Galilee, lost 700 chickens because of the heat, and a five-roomed hut was burned down. Jerusalem registered a temperature of 38 degrees Centigrade (98 degrees Fahrenheit), Elath and Sodom 43 degrees, and Tiberias 40.

The coastal plane was much cooler, with temperatures under 30 degrees Centigrade (86 degrees Fahrenheit).

Progress

By RUTHIE

Well, we're living right smack in the era of progress. And who are we to take exception to advanced strides in living and industry? Still . . .

Take our wonderful highways. They're a boon to every motorist. Now one can arrive at nowhere faster than before. All you see is a lot of quick-moving steel, sign of our highly mechanized manner of living. Every side road leads one way—to a main artery of travel.

Gone are the days when one could just take a leisurely spin along the countryside and enjoy the scenery—cows grazing, horses neighing, a little red barn in the distance. If you are lucky enough to get onto a dirt road, you're more than likely to get an eyeful of excavation alongside of which stands a billboard announcing a new housing development.

It's impossible even to ride at a slow pace along a water front. The guy behind thinks you're nuts and swears because you're slowing down traffic.

As the Chinese say, Americans are always in a hurry to go no place.

Another sign of progress is the bigger and better supermarket. Besides edibiles, you get under one roof toys, medicinal products, shampoo, electric bulbs, stockings, hardware, garden implements, infants' wear, encyclopedias—there's no end. For the lazy, like me, it's heavenly. No grocery store to go to, no fruit store to bother with, no drug store to look for, no hardware store to find, no baby store to hunt for—no waste of time.

Yet, I wonder. With everything you can acquire in one place, the essential element is missing—warmth.

I remember when mama would stick her head out of a third floor window and yell,

"Ruthie, go to Shickler's and get half-a-quarter lox and one pound pumpernickel—the middle. I'll pay him later."

I would hurry on my errand. When I entered the store, there was pot-bellied Mr. Shickler snoozing a little behind the counter, with a Yiddishe Journal opened up before him. And he'd mutter under his breath because I interrupted his reading of Dus Bintel Brief (column of letters seeking advice).

After hearing what I came for, he'd grumble,

"Nu, a half-a-quarter lox? Vot (what) is mit (with) your mama? She kent (can't) take a whole pound and make more than von (one) sennavitch (sandwich)?"

He really blew his top when I asked for the pound pumpernickel, the middle part.

"And vot, smartie, do I do mit the ends?"

But Mr. Shickler was afraid of mama. It was just like her to send back anything if it wasn't what she wanted.

However, the old codger had a soft spot beneath his rough exterior. He never let me go without his throwing in a shtickl (piece) halvah or maybe half-a-dozen broken cookies.

And where are the days when you were sent to get a quart milk? It wasn't like now, when beverages come bottled. Then every family possessed an aluminum one-quart or two-quart can with a handle, something like a watering can. And you took that along when you went to the grocer's for milk. In a cold spot in back of the store stood a huge vat filled with the beverage. Our good man took an enormous ladle, scooped out the required amount and that was that.

When you got home, mama yelled at you for being so careless as not to notice that, right on top, swam a big, fat cockroach. That, however, didn't bother her much. It wasn't the roach mama minded. It was just that she thought she was being taken for a ride.

"That skunk! For my good money (eight cents) he gives me this? Take it back and let him give you another quart."

And you brought it back, the evidence in full view. For if you poured it out, he wouldn't believe you.

Maybe that's why we're so healthy now — You know—the more one is exposed, the greater the immunity.

I, for one, miss the small storekeeper.

UPPER CANADA VILLAGE

For almost a quarter century Old Fort Henry, in Kingston, Ontario, has been one of the leading attractions for visitors in Eastern Canada. Located on a promontory just east of the city harbour, the fortress bristles with mounted cannon and is defended by all the paraphernalia of early nineteenth century fortification. Thousands have thrilled to the pomp and pageantry displayed by the famous Fort Henry Guard. In the colourful uniforms of 1867 the guardsmen exhibit the foot and arms drill of the Imperial garrisons who once manned the Fort and fire salutes from the 150-year old muzzle-loading cannon. This year the Fort is open daily from 9 a.m. to 9.30 p.m. The season runs until September 16.

During its heyday the Fort was known as "The Citadel of Upper Canada". Begun in 1812, it was built to fend off invading American forces during the War of 1812. From 1812 to 1891 the Fort was garrisoned by detachments from many famous British and Canadian regiments. During the intervening years between 1891 and 1936, the Fort fell into disuse and the walls began to crumble. In 1936 the painstaking work of restoration began. On August 1, 1938, the renovated Fort was officially opened to the public. Today, its rooms, casemates and ramparts vividly recall the story of Canada's past; there are collections of antique weapons, specialized collections of infantry, cavalry, artillery and naval arms and equipment, as well as refurnished living quarters.

The Guard is composed of Canadian university students, highly trained in the battle tactics of a hundred years ago. The precision and authenticity of their performance has won them an international reputation. In 1956 the Guard participated in the Royal Tournament, London, England; the Guard also has the distinction of being one of three units in the world whom the United States Marine Corps has honoured with the presentation of a Marine Corps drum.

SHEEP IN THE ORANGE GROVES

A sheep in an orange grove is not quite the same as a bull in a china shop, though it might seem like it at first glance. But second thoughts indicate that it offers a solution to many problems, as the imitators of Rassco's latest project have found out.

First, Israel is in need of fine wool to supply its textile industry which is expanding rapidly. Second, she is in need of more meat, especially mutton. The difficulty is that the breeding of wool sheep and mutton sheep, which is of great value for the Israel economy, is dependent on a permanent and abundant supply of pasture and hay.

This is where Rassco comes in. Their orange groves are able to furnish this pasture. The orange trees are widely spaced to allow the necessary mechanical operations, including irrigation, spraying and picking. In the spaces between, weeds and grass grow. Instead of being destroyed as hitherto, this grass could become a source of feed for flocks of sheep producing mutton and wool. At the same time, the labor formerly involved in weed pulling is saved. Moreover, the sheep naturally tend to keep grass down because of their grazing habits.

Another important benefit of keeping sheep in a citrus grove is the fact that sheep turn weeds into organic manure which is necessary for producing good and abundant crops. The quality of nitrogen deposited is high, and the cost of transporting manure and incorporating it into the soil is saved.

As for the sheep themselves, Rassco have selected a breed suitable for producing wool and mutton, namely the German Mutton Merino, which has proved successful in similar climates to Israel, as in the Western Province of South Africa and in Turkey. The wool of this breed produces a fine type much favored in Israel and hitherto imported in the form of tops. It compares very well with similar merino wools. In addition, the fertility of the German Merino is high, and the lambs mature early and develop well. The German Merino is well known in a number of countries for its hardiness and low death rate as compared to other breeds, and the new venture may be expected to prove successful.

LAND OF HOPE

A CANADIAN JEWISH NOVEL — By CLARA HOFFER & F. H. KAHAN

CHAPTER 8
A ROCKY ROMANCE

The boys went back to the threshing outfit. Those left at home walked about like ghosts, not talking to one another. Zelda complained to her daughter as they walked about the garden gathering onions, radishes and lettuce for their dinner.

"Reb Moshe avoids us. He doesn't answer when spoken to, he sits and smokes his pipe all day and far into the night. Puff, puff he goes all the time. I think there should be a time for everything."

"I'm afraid he's taking the loss of the wheat too hard," Clara replied, shaking loose dirt off a large onion.

A light breeze stirred her brown braided hair which shone with a reddish glint in the sunlight. A light tan sprinkled with freckles covered her thin heart-shaped face, her arms and her long slender neck. Her cotton dress moved gently about her slight figure and shapely legs.

"I don't think it's that," her mother said. "I'm afraid he's hinting that he's not going to let you two get married. He calls you the American. And he has picked a girl in the Old Country for his son to marry."

Clara stopped in exasperation. "I don't think he's that foolish. You are all just imagining things, being suspicious of one another. Old Country girl! No Old Country girl will come here to marry unless she knows he can provide her with the luxuries she could not get there."

She was indignant, her blue eyes flashed. She knew that her parents would exult over the opportunity to separate them. Her choice of a husband did not please them for they believed that marrying Israel would mean shutting herself away from the world."

Clara remembered, with bitterness, her parents' reaction when she and Israel had informed them of their engagement. Her father's face had grown dark with annoyance and his red beard had trembled.

"Of course," he had grumbled, "my daughter has gone beyond tradition. Isn't it the style for the young man to ask a father first? Canada! But Canada or no Canada, children should respect their elders."

Zelda shushed him. "You are hurting them."

"Do they worry if they hurt me? No."

"But Shmaya, remember, he is marrying our daughter and we have no dowry. That could not happen in the Old Country."

Clara had no dowry but she had had something to show her fiance with pride; her handiwork which she had made during her high school days in Storozynets, Austria. There were knitted shawls, chocheted laces, yards and yards to trim sheets and pillow slips, tatting, embroidered table runners and pillow slips and undergarments. She aired them spring and fall in the sunshine to prevent them from turning yellow. All this had been lost in the fire.

To her mother Clara said, "You believe in fate, don't you? I believe it's my destiny to help Israel fulfill his dream and share it with him. Tell father to speak to the old man, will you?" Her eyes lit up eagerly. "Maybe he's troubled about our future and needs a little encouragement."

OUR ENTERTAINMENT WORLD

By D. COHN

● Eddie Fisher was persuaded by Mel Ferrer to make a fast get-the-money trip to South America in mid-summer. Eddie will do three weeks at a reported $27,500 a week at the Latin Casino, Camden, in September and will star at the Miami Beach Eden Roc in February.

● Richard Burton's affair with Liz Taylor has increased his pay scale about 300 percent.

● Milt Kutsher remembers when double parking was illegal — instead of impossible.

● A Michigan paper had this typographical terror: "For the thrill of performing at the White House, the 24-year-old vocalist broke off an engagement to sin in Paris."

● Ralph Bunche stops at Glasgow on his way to Gaza this week, to receive an honorary degree.

● Irwin Shaw told his mother about his new book, new play and new movie. She was concerned only about his bleeding ulcers. "I wish you'd been a plumber. Plumbers don't get ulcers," said his mother . . . "But, Mrs. Shaw," a friend told her, "if Irwin were a plumber, he'd never have been invited to the White House."

"If my Irwin had been a plumber," Mrs. Shaw replied, "He'd be such a great plumber that the White House would have him in to do the plumbing."

● George Jessel will conduct 120 Californians on a tour to Jerusalem.

● Prof. Mordecai Gorelik's new theater course at Southern Illinois University will stress realities, including a course in "how to keep alive while trying to get somewhere in the theater".

● A recent survey shows that married men have fewer auto accidents than bachelors. Probably because they don't get the car as often.

● A secretary is a girl you pay to learn to spell while she's looking for a husband.

● Max Gordon bought out his long-time Blue Angel partner, Herbert Jacoby.

● An actor told Bernie Allen why his marriage broke up: "She didn't love me as much as I did."

● Leon Abramson recalls the waiter in a midwest restaurant who said he served blended coffee: "It's blended — yesterday's and today's."

● "Father's Day is alway's a tense occasion for me," Dick Gregory. "I keep thinking: what if my wife gives me something I can't afford?"

● The Scarsdale High School Dramatic Group in New York City will perform next month in Jerusalem. They will play the "Diary of Anne Frank" in which Judy Garland's daughter will have the lead. Judy will fly there especially to see her perform.

● Adding insult to injury, here's what happened when Harry Belafonte was refused service at a restaurant in Atlanta: the hostess of the place said to Belafonte, "I'm sorry you can't be served. However — may I have your autograph?"

● Sherman Billingsley, owner of the Stork Club, plans to erect a private membership club on property he owns near Second Avenue.

● A noted doctor who saw George C. Scott as Shylock in Joe Papp's "The Merchant of Venice" at the Shakespeare Festival in New York's Central Park said that the plot has become outdated. Russian scientists, said the doctor, have discovered a way of cutting flesh without shedding a drop of blood.

● Jane Pickens will fly to Israel to inspect cerebral palsy institutes.

● Ezra Stone, the producer-director, tells of interviewing an Austrian actor, Max Wilenz. The actor said that in all his years as a star in Germany and Austria, only once did he violate theatrical tradition: "It was when I was playing at the Stadt Theatre the night Hitler marched into Vienna. When the curtain came down, I left — without giving two weeks' notice."

● Recently Mrs. David Ben Gurion introduced producer Hal Prince to her husband: "This is Hal Prince. He produced 'West Side Story'" . . . The prime minister showed no reaction, and his wife added: "West Side Story. Lennie's show" . . . Ben Gurion said: "Lennie Bernstein I know. 'West Side Story' I don't."

● Charlie Wadsworth relates: A drunk on his way home wandered into a zoo and stood before the hippopotamus' cage. "Don't look at me that way, baby," he said, "I can exshplain everything."

3600 Bathurst Street

SHAAREI TEFILLAH is a traditional Synagogue. Its mood is that of Historic Judaism as applied to contemporary society.

SHAAREI TEFILLAH is guided by the philosophy that the Torah is the word of G-d, and therefore applicable to all situations in all ages.

SHAAREI TEFILLAH is democratically designed to serve the needs of every Jew, rich and poor, more observant and less, in this community. Our Synagogue, in its structure, form and expression, is the authentic heir to the vigorous spirit and great tradition of the Historic Synagogue. Within its framework every Jew can find his or her place.

SHAAREI TEFILLAH projects the unique form of Jewish worship which has characterized Judaism through the ages. The simple beauty of the traditional service is enhanced by stirring Congregational singing in which every voice is raised.

SHAAREI TEFILLAH provides a comprehensive Adult Education Program. The variety and type of program can satisfy the intellectual curiosity of every Jew in our Community. Courses in Basic Concepts in Judaism, Elementary and Advanced Hebrew, Talmud in English and Yiddish, Prayers, Bible, Jewish History and Jewish Classics provide ample fare for the discriminating intellectual taste.

DATELINE. HAMILTON

AS I SEE IT

By PAUL HANOVER

Alright! Who's the wise guy that put that Busy Bee sticker on my windshield? And right on top of my CHIQ one, too!

I know, I know! That should have been George, not Sam Steinberg, in last week's item And this is the week-end when George becomes the Father of the Bride, as "dotter" Honey (Helen) exchanges vows with lawyer Gary Chertkoff, recent election candidate for the N. D. P. (Translation: Newly Disappointed Party) Well, one thing about it — Gary can now stop worrying about soliciting votes and get back to plain old soliciting. Now, as far as how I made out in the election, suffice it to say — thank heavens the city hall steps ain't what they used to be!

If you're any kind of B'nai B'rith member, you'd recog nize the name in a moment. If you're any kind of horse fan, you'd score just as quickly. But, for some reason, I never associated the name EHRLICK on the horse vans (drive them home from the track, Phooey! Let them walk like I'm going to have to!) with the Murray Ehrlick who'll be the first president when the just approved autonomous Canadian District comes into official being. And countless are the bowling conventions Murray helped make successful. Well related indeed, are the two names, his father having been the founder of this company that has the official contract with the Jockey Club. Murray has no connection with the firm, he being a successful insurance man; but connections with horses he definitely has. Just this year he became the first Jew ever to be voted to the executive of the toney Eglinton Hunt Club. And to what does he owe this achievement? Well, here's the switch: to his son, 16-year-old Alan Ehrlick who rates as one of the top Junior horsemen in the country and is an accredited member of the official Canadian Jumping teams, with invitations to compete in practically every important show on both sides of the border. Alan cites as his inspiration yet another Jewish lad, his idol being Melvin Stone, rated third on the Senior Canadian team. All of which is a feather-in-the-cap for Toronto. Now, let's see. Over here we have, ahhh, Wilfred Gerofsky, who may not be Olympic calibre, but, as they say back in the tack room, does have a good seat.

Street Scene: Dentist Norm Simon in the company of Lou Rodney barreling down Main St. in Lou's top-down convertible, all smiles; just as if they didn't know where they had to be by supper time because its not like the old days . . . The following is not a paid commercial, although, heaven knows, I tried hard enough to make it so: Joe Fauman, for years on the Murray Yolles team at Home Outfitting, now faces the cold cruel world alone at 136 James N.

I wonder why it is, I can't get Marion Bennett and Eva Rosenberg to advertise their Party Planning service on MY program.

Suggestion from Guelph's Harry Kwitco: to those who might be planning to enter next year's B'nai B'rith Golf tournament: bring your own accountants. The results were held up over an hour while Syd Kudlats and Phil Rosenshein huddled with Beverly Pro — Jim McKitrick trying to solve the Handicap System. I'm not sure intricacies of the Atlantic whether that should read solve or juggle. Somehow or another Harry, with a 158, was going to wind up with the Low Net Trophy. But, after a couple of more huddles, the award finally went to a more expert golfer, Kitchener's Sheldon Koskie. If it's any consolation to Harry, with that committee even Arnold Palmer would be in trouble! Low Gross won Hersh Goldhar with runner-up, Abbie Adler. These two are so consistent they could have stayed home and phoned in their scores. Among the new trophies being considered for next year are The Lefty Boles Trophy for the best slicer, and the Morris Gelber Trophy to be awarded to the guy who isn't strictly kosher with his golf card. Oh, by the way the prize for the Most Honest Golfer went to me. I'm so honest about my golf game I didn't even play. Now if there were more honest players like me, there'd be a lot healthier greens around.

HAMILTON ADAS ISRAEL SISTERHOOD

The Adas Israel Sisterhood of Hamilton held its closing meeting on Monday evening, June 18th, in the Social Hall of the Synagogue. Members and guests were welcomed by the president, Mrs. Nathan Katz. The invocation was given by Mrs. D. Vertlieb, the Sisterhood's honorary first vice-president.

Various reports were read by chairmen of projects held during the year: May Lilac Tea, Golden Book Fund, Youth Conclave, Fashion Show, Gift Shop Building Fund, Sunday School and Financial Report.

For the first time Sisterhood will award scholarships to two teenagers to attend the Summer Torah Leadership Seminar to be held in New York. This is a project of the Youth Bureau of Yeshiva University to which the Adas Israel Youth is affiliated.

Mrs. N. Katz gave a report of the year's activities. She presented the Sisterhood's two honorary past presidents, Mrs. David Vertlieb, and Mrs. Morris Kam, with gold merit pins; then she called on the latter to present pins to members of the outgoing executive and to those members who had been responsible for projects during the past number of years. The following received pins: Mrs. M. Appel, Mrs. A. Blain, Mrs. H. Bornstein, Mrs. S. Buchalter, Mrs. H. Chappel, Mrs. B. Cohen, Mrs. W. Cohen, Mrs. I. Dulberg, Mrs. D. Hoffman, Mrs. M. Hoffman, Mrs. Nutte Katz, Mrs. Joshua Katz, Mrs. Samuel Katz, Mrs. M. Klein, Mrs. C. Laiman, Mrs. M. Lieberman, Mrs. J. Lindenberg, Mrs. Hy Maker, Mrs. Joseph Mandel, Mrs. Jack Mandel, Mrs. J. Rotman, Mrs. (Rochelle) J. Waxman, Mrs. H. Rotman, Mrs. M. Rotman, Mrs. B. Waxman, Mrs. I. Waxman, and Mrs. G. Zwicker. Mrs. Nathan Katz was presented with a beautiful gold charm by Mrs. Irving Waxman on behalf of the executive and members.

A new slate of officers was presented to the membership by Mrs. Bernard Cohen, who conducted the elections for the next two years. The new executive is as follows: honorary presidents, Mrs. D. Vertlieb and Mrs. M. Kam; president, Mrs. Nathan Katz; first vice-president, Mrs. Joseph Mandel; second vice-president, Mrs. D. Hoffman; third vice-president, Mrs. A. Blain; treasurer, Mrs. L. Aron; financial secretary, Mrs. M. Friedman; recording secretary, Mrs. I. Dulberg; corresponding secretary, Mrs. Larry Woolf.

Trend For Apartment Dwellers . . .

An attractive trend in apartment living has arrived with the final phase of Don Mills development.

Along the rows of apartments on Parkwood Village Dr., you'll see the lush lawns and clean sweep of the Laurentian.

It's really more like a live-in country club than an apartment development built by Perkell Bros. Construction.

• Luxury apartment living amid swimming and playground areas features Parkwood Village's new Laurentian suites.

The winding walk leads through landscaped gardens to a French-inspired porte-cochere to shelter walkers from the weather.

The lobby sports floor to ceiling drapes, the finest broadloom, French provincial trappings, and a huge vanity mirror where tenants can perform last minute primping on their way out.

To the right are the apartments, exclusively styled, but conventional. To the left are the maisonettes.

COMBINATIONS

The Laurentian is a potential winner of the Canadian Design Council Award. Two years ago Perkell Bros. Construction Co. won 2 awards for their buildings.

There is lush grass at the living room door, cared for by one of two full-time Laurentian gardeners. Each maisonette has its own patio and the tenants take full advantage of the sunning possibilities.

Between the two main buildings is a playground for the kids, with swings, slides, teeter-totters, and plenty of room for wild tricyclists.

The squeals and splashing beyond the playground come from the Laurentian's swimming pool.

DAILY LIFEGUARD

Open for tenants from noon to 9 p.m. daily, with a qualified lifeguard in attendance, the pool is another extra the development offers.

The younger couples are already talking about a water polo league to while away the hot summer afternoons.

When the sun goes down the crowd can move to either of two recreation rooms in the Laurentian, fully equipped for ping-pong, card games, or dancing.

Music is piped through every room in the Laurentian by hi-fi speakers which tenants can turn on and off at will.

Each suite has an individual control on the speaker so you can either take your music, or leave it alone.

In case father thinks the management has forgotten him, the men should hear there are no parking problems at the Laurentian.

There are six parking places for every five suites in the development. The outside spots are free. Parking in the heated underground garage costs a few dollars a month.

Extra closets have been installed in every suite and they are all deeper than normal.

The Laurentian is constructed of reinforced concrete, adding strength and soundproofing qualities to the structure.

Swimming in the Laurentian pool will be most popular on summer days, and already some of the girls are out enjoying the water. The apartment also provides a playground area for children, complete with swings and teeter-totters.
